

Carol Raymond French Fund for study abroad scholarships (2020-2021)

The Department of Foreign Languages & Literatures, through the generous support of the Carol Raymond French Fund, announces its annual scholarship competition for study abroad projects in French and Francophone studies. The Committee is looking to disburse money for study abroad projects set to take place between May 2020 and May 2021. To apply, a student must be enrolled as an undergraduate student at UNM and participate in a study abroad and/or research project that involves French or Francophone studies. French majors and second majors will have preference, but French minors as well as International Studies, Comparative Literature, and Languages majors specializing in French are also encouraged to apply. The study abroad program can be of any duration.

Application Checklist:

- A cover sheet that includes your name, address, phone number, email address, and intended graduation date (See below, hardcopies available in 229 Ortega Hall);
- A 300-word narrative describing your project;
- A one-page itemized budget indicating expected expenses, specifying how much money you are requesting from the Carol Raymond French Fund, and explaining how you plan to meet total expenses with or without such funding;
- Your most recent unofficial UNM transcript, along with a separate page listing the French classes you have taken and the calculation of your GPA in those classes;
- Two letters of recommendation, at least one of which must be from a faculty member of French at UNM.

Application must be typed on plain white paper, held together with a paper clip.

Applications should be sent to or dropped off with:

Dr. Stephen Bishop
Dept. of Foreign Languages & Literatures
MSC 03 2080
